"What is it they put in IVORY SOAP, Doctor, to obtain its healing qualities?"

"No special ingredient is used. It is simply because the IVORY is as nearly pure as it is possible to make soap. Any soap that is as pure as the IVORY will be equally as healing in its effect, but the difficulty is to find a soap so pure. The profession recommend this non-irritating soap simply to cleanse the wound, then nature does the rest. You can readily appreciate what the effect would be if your neck had been washed with an impure and adulterated soap. Avoid colored and highly perfumed soap, for the coloring and perfume are so often used to disguise something the soap should not contain."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

CHINESE ODDITIES.

THE EXCITEMENT CAUSED BY THE ADVENT OF A FOREIGNER.

Watching the Pale Faced Traveler at His Meal—Remarks of the Almond Eyed Bystanders—Hotels and Eating Houses—Beds and Furniture.

I called them good humored, but a stranger would not think so, if he saw them for the first time. On the contrary, the state of things seems to be bordering on a riot. The amount of energy that lies latent in a Chinaman, waiting to be developed and manifested by a discussion of cash, is simply incalculable. As we coolly regard this throng of half dressed, yellow colored people, we see chance acquaintances who have run against one another for half an hour, screaming their loudest, with distorted countenances and violent gesticulations, apparently threatening immediate death to those who differ from them. It seems incredible that the subject is of no more importance than whether a sack of potatoes or basket of fish shall be half a farthing more or less.

Imagine our coming suddenly into such a crowd in a short serge jacket and big sun hat, under which is a pale face and beard. If the place is one where foreigners are occasionally seen, they will look up, say "Hwan-kui" (foreign ghost), and after a few moments resume their employment as though we were not there. If, however, foreigners are almost unknown in those parts, we know perfectly well that we shall have no peace except such as we can secure by means of a little maneuvering. Sometimes the landlord appears pleased to receive us, but now and then he seems to think we take up too much room, with the crowd who stand round to look at us. It is very entertaining to observe how excited such a crowd often becomes by the advent of a foreigner, and how rapidly the news spreads to neighboring houses that a "foreign ghost" has arrived. Mine host stands and threatens terrible things, which he has not the smallest intention of carrying into execution. For half an hour he will shout and gesticulate, entreating the untutored herd to remember the proprieties and not crowd in so much upon the foreign gentleman.

A FOREIGNER AT HIS MEAL.

The point of greatest interest is always reached when the traveler begins his meal. He has carried with him all he wants with the exception of rice, potatoes, hot water and one or two other things. The laying out of plates, knives and forks is a great mystery. Much questioning goes on as to the way of using them. They beg to know the reason why we prefer to employ a man to carry all our apparatus for dinner, instead of using their bowls and chop sticks. The spoon and fork, apparently made of solid silver, greatly astonishes them, and the traveler is ready enough to own that they are not silver at all. When we lift our food to our mouth, many hands move in a similar way, as they say quietly to one another, "Look! He is doing like this!" Standing so closely around our small table that we feel inconvenienced, we entreat them to give us breathing room while we dine, and afterward we will talk to them. Many voices break forth with pleasure at our speaking to them. "The foreigner speaks our words," says one; "Yes, let him eat," says another; "Stand back, you man without propriety," says a third, whose zeal for good manners is evidently due only to his desire to secure a front place.

At such a time one is almost always questioned in the same way. The most trivial and ridiculous questions are asked. The inquiries they make of a foreigner are such as they commonly make among themselves. How far is it to your ancestral home? Are your venerable parents living? How many sons have you? Was your linen made in China or in England? How do you get it so white? How are marriages arranged among the foreign children? What is your income?"

A little mild banter is much appreciated by the crowd, but brings out a more rapid fusillade of questions. In the country places about Amoy I have been asked very frequently, "Where is the country where the people have one leg?—one arm?—one eye?—and where there are only women? Have you seen these lands?" What the origin of these notions is it is hard to say. Perhaps some Chinese Baron Munchausen or Dean Swift wrote a burlesque book of travels, which has in the course of time been accepted as authentic by a people who have for so many centuries stayed at home.

INNS ON THE GREAT ROADS.

In China every traveler carries his bedding with him; in the daytime it helps to pack the cart, or is laid, by way of saddle, upon the ass. The traveler may count himself fortunate if he can find in some Mutual Prosperity or Heavenly Union hostel a tolerable room in which to rest. On the great roads, and the recognized stages, the inns are pretty sure to be decent, but elsewhere they are often wretched.

In those of the better sort there is generally an eating house or tea shop on one side of the large door leading into the yard. The shop faces the street, and is connected with the cook house and private rooms of the landlord. At this end, too, are the rooms occupied by the carters and others. Passing through the great door, the visitor finds himself in a large unpaved yard with buildings all round it. On one side are, perhaps, six or eight guest rooms, little boxes about twelve feet square, with paper in place of glass for windows, doors which do not fit, and through the openings of which wind and dust find their way.

A very rickety old chair and an equally decrepit table are the only furniture, the bed being simply a brick or mud platform filling nearly half the little room and raised about two feet from the floor. Underneath it is a fire, into which, in cold weather, dry grass or other fuel is pushed and fired, the heat and smoke passing in a zigzag line just under the surface of the couch, and finally escaping up a vent in the wall. Other fireplace there is none; and if, as often happens, the chimney should be foul the warmed bed is but a poor compensation for smarting eyes and partial suffocation. But there are other rooms sometimes at the top of the yard, and it is always an object to secure them, as they are a trifle larger and cleaner and probably in better repair. The charges are moderate, from 100 to 200 cash per night—about 25 cents—with extras for food and gratuities to servants.
—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

The Effects of Novel Reading.

The mischief of voracious novel reading is really much more like the mischief of dram drinking than appears at first sight. It tends to make all other literary nourishment intolerable, just as dram drinking tends to make all true food intolerable, and to supersede food by drink. The voracious novel reader of today, as we have said, rejects Scott, because Scott's novels contain so much good food that it is not mere story telling. The genuine novel reader detests what he calls tame stories, stories in which the interest is not exaggerated and piled up ten times as high as the interests of ordinary life. He wants always to be feeling a thrill of excitement running through his nerves, always to be living in imagination through the concentrated essence of the perils of a hundred adventurous lives, instead of toiling calmly through the ordinary hopes and fears of one.

No state of mind can be more unwholesome, because none is more calculated to divert the energies from the sort of quiet tasks to which they should be habitually applied, and to keep them stretched on the tenter hooks of expectation, waiting for a sort of strain which is never likely to occur, and if it did occur, would certainly not find a man's energies any the better prepared for it for having been worn out previously with a long series of imaginary excitements. The habit of dram drinking, it is said, leads to fatty degeneration of the heart, i. e., excessive fattening round the heart, and weak action of the heart in consequence. So, too, the habit of exciting novel reading leads to fatty degeneration of the literary mind, i. e., to an unhealthy and spasmodic action of the imagination, and a general weakening of the power of entering thoroughly into the solid interests of real life. So far as we know, the only effective cure for this habit of literary dram drinking—a cure not always forthcoming—is a moral shock of some kind which exposes the hollowness of all these unreal interests, and makes them appear as artificial and melodramatic as they actually are. That, however, is a cure which is an extremely painful one, almost cruel in its disillusionizing power.—London Spectator.

The Care of Domestic Animals.

The family cat is regarded with far greater respect in England than America. Every householder in New York, when he packs off for the summer, leaves the cat to live in the streets. The consequence is that during the hot weather the cats of the Empire city cry aloud and shout; they wail in anguish to the earless moon in moans "most musicall, most melancholie." They make night hideous for callous hearted man, who ignores their affection and rejects their companionship. Among cranks, commend me to the animal loving crank. He is a bit weak headed at times, but softness of heart is quite compatible with strongness of mind. Whether the Baroness Burdett-Coutts was cranky or not as a connoisseur in husbandry she shows admirable judgment in the care of animals. And her care for them when they cease from age or malady to be serviceable beasts of burden entitles her to public homage. At Holly Lodge, her beautiful suburban home at Highgate, she keeps her worn out horses, donkeys, cattle, dogs, cats and other pets in well tended pastures and stables until they die. And she visits them with the regularity of a doctor, sparing nothing that can give them comfort. Others here and there do the same.

I have seen pedigree cattle with famous names and records living in luxury to a good old age, and I also seen poor folks' broken down horses and pets kept in country quarters at an expense they could but ill afford. "The merciful man is merciful to his beast." What of New Yorkers and their cats? If they sneer at the bare idea of imitating the example of those who have established a home for cats in London, let them do something better. For a very small fee the Londoner who locks up house to go a-holiday making can have his cat properly cared for until the family return. This is common humanity and common sense. If the wealthy New York housekeeper cannot afford to keep his cat all the year round, he should have it killed rather than cruelly subject it to the horrors of New York street life.—New York Cor. Globe-Democrat.

People of New Brunswick.

They are a splendid people here. There is a certain dignity about every one of them far more striking than with any English in England. And what is better, they are truly kind hearted and polite. I used to know, a quarter of a century ago, some of those grand old Hudson Bay company's factors; and fine fellows they were—brave, cultured, chivalrous, gentle and good, but with a roaring sort of way with them that suggested the entrancing Manitoban Indian summer with a lurking, howling blizzard element beneath. These are like them. Climate has had to do with it; true culture of brain and brawn, more. They are near enough to the states to be emulative; far enough from England to abhor incivility.

They—and all New Brunswick folk—are less pretentious than we; more tolerant than others of their nationality. In all that makes sociologic distinction, these people are immeasurably better than Englishmen, and infinitely less the time servers and snobs than some Americans. I should say they had got further away from the England we profess to condemn than many of us whose cheeks should flame for our cockney apings; that they were, in moderation, level headedness, clean culture, and in the freedom from feverish ambitions and vanities, far in advance of most of our communities; that they possessed the best of Old World equipoise and conservatism, and of New World virility; and that if by any good fortune of diplomacy or war their country should become our country, we would secure a fine bit of possession and as admirable a class of people as are now within our farthest boundaries.—Edgar L. Wakeman's Letter.

A Non-Transferable Railroad Ticket.

A young railroad man of Atlanta has come to the front with an invention in the way of a ticket that will bring him fame and an enviable bank account. It is simply this: The purchaser of an ironclad ticket is not to be required to write his name or make any formal declaration as to his intention in regard to the ticket. Nothing of the kind. The agent who sells the low rate round trip points his little camera at you while he gives you your change. It records the image of the purchaser in an instant. The agent pulls out the slide, rubs his chemical sponge over the sensitized paper and—there you are. In the upper left hand corner of the ticket he pastes that picture, puts it in under a stamp that embosses the edges, and unless you can find somebody that looks enough like you to risk the chance of a return on your image the ticket will carry the original purchaser and nobody else.—Atlanta Constitution.

Bicycles for English Soldiers.

The bicycle force that has been organized in connection with the English volunteers recently had its second field manœuvers, the first having been held at Easter. Rainy and disagreeable weather embarrassed the troops on each of these dates, but the result of the turnout has been very satisfactory. On the recent trials the men covered about 100 miles in forty-eight hours, fighting, scouting and camping by the way. There were seventeen officers and seventy-seven men out, made up of representatives of a number of the leading volunteer regiments.

The force was divided into two bodies, one retreating and the other following it. At frequent intervals the retreating force made stands at bridges and other eligible points of defense, and the pursuers were compelled to halt, dismount, send out a skirmish line and perform all the other preliminaries of attack, as though in active war. It was found that two or three men left behind by the retreating body could make a show of force at a bridge that would greatly delay the advance of a pursuing force, and then could mount and swiftly ride away under cover of a hedge and escape to the main body. This ability to fight and run away with greater facility than the ordinary infantryman is one of the chief points urged by the bicyclers in favor of the new "arm." It is said that scouting and reconnoitering parties mounted upon bicycles could do much more effective work without risk of capture than men on foot.

In these manœuvers, although the retreating force numbered but three officers and twelve men, they succeeded in delaying the pursuers so that it took them three hours to cover a distance easily made in less than two when no obstacles are interposed. Three of the retreating force dallied too long at a bridge, and were ridden down and captured by a detachment of the enemy. There were no other losses. The chief difficulty experienced was due to the number of parallel roads occasionally converging that ran through the country traversed. The retreating party had to keep scouts constantly ahead picking up the lay of the land and bringing in reports, to protect themselves from the danger of being flanked on some of these roads and cut off entirely at a converging point. In a country with one good main road and but few side roads the success of a bicycle corps in obstructing the passage of an enemy would be much greater. Bicycles have not yet been introduced in the British regular army, but if their success among the volunteers continues, it is expected that a similar corps will be organized in each regular regiment.—New York Sun.

The stern of a departing ferryboat is more polite than that of other boats. It always returns a bow.—Syracuse Christian Advocate.

THE CONFEDERATE PRESS.

HOW SOUTHERN PAPERS WERE PRINTED IN WAR TIMES.

Scarcity of Paper and Paper Making Materials—Straits of Publishers of Books and Sheet Music—Song Books, Tracts and Pamplets—New Novels.

Side by side with the reports of battles and the records of peace commissions, congresses and legislatures, the blurred columns of the Confederate press were wont to teem with domestic recipes for cheap dishes, directions for raising and utilizing various vegetable products, instructions for making much of little in matters pertaining to every phase of household life. Hard by a list of dead and wounded would stand a recipe for tanning dog skins for gloves; while the paragraphs just succeeding the closing column of the description of a naval engagement off Hampton roads were directions for the use of boneset as a substitute for quinine.

The journals of that day were printed usually upon the poorest paper, made of straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that the slightest touch mutilated it. The ink, like the paper, was of the cheapest and commonest, and left its impression, not only on the face of the sheet, but on the hands no less than on the mind of the reader. Few fonts of new type found their way into the Confederacy during the war, and at the end of four years the facilities for printing had come to a low ebb. It was no uncommon thing for publishers to issue half sheets in lieu of a complete paper, with scarcely an apology to subscribers for the curtailment of their literary and news rations. It was generally understood that this happened only through stern necessity, and not from any disposition on the part of the newspaper men to give less than an equivalent for the subscription price.

Sometimes the journal which on yesterday appeared in all the glory of a six column page was today cut down to a four column half sheet, or publication was suspended with the announcement that the stock of materials had been exhausted, and that as soon as the office could be replenished publication would be resumed. Eagerly as the rough sheets were looked for and closely as they were read, a diminution of matter in them, or a failure to appear, caused only passing comment or dissatisfaction. Men's minds were so filled with the thousand things that each day brought forth about them, there were so many rumors in the air, and news flew so rapidly even without newspaper aid, as to cause them not too greatly to miss that which today has come to be one of the veriest necessities of American life—a daily journal full of all the doings of all the world.

Sometimes even the coarse straw paper failed the publishing fraternity when an edition was absolutely imperative, yet in such emergency the inventive talent never deserted them. It was considered a wonderful journalistic feat on the part of its publishers for The Vicksburg Citizen, during the siege of that city, to make its appearance, when all other resources had failed, upon wall paper.

Publishers of books and sheet music occupied a scarcely less helpless condition than the newspaper people. Their sole grounds of superiority consisted in the fact that the demands upon them were not so urgent. The girl who sang to her soldier lover the popular songs of that time, "Lorena," "When This Cruel War is Over," "The Standard Bearer," or "Harp of the South," which were all duly advertised "at the retail price of $1 per sheet; the trade supplied, however, at half off, with an additional discount where 100 of one piece are ordered," did not experience that immediate and instant need of the song and its music which men and women alike felt for the newspaper that would tell them where the last battle had been fought, which army had been victorious, who had been promoted and who had fallen. The fateful column might contain evil or good report of some dear one, and its coming was full of interest and apprehension. Yet the sheet music, printed like the newspapers, in the roughest style, upon the commonest paper, with now and then a caricatured lithographic likeness of some Confederate general on the title page, continued to be sold and sung, even though its price ran from $1 to $2 per sheet.

War songs and war music were the order of the day, and the soldiers in the camps and the small boys in ragged jackets shouted with an equal zest:

The despot's heel is on thy shore!

Farewell forever to the star spangled banner!

from diminutive paper covered books of martial ballads. The little song books cost anywhere from two and a half to five Confederate dollars, and their contents, with a few notable exceptions, were as mediocre as the paper on which they were printed. The sentiment was there, nevertheless, and this was cared for by the singers more than the music or the lyrical or literary excellence of the songs.

The missionary and religious publishing houses never ceased their praiseworthy labor of printing tracts and pamphlets for distribution among the soldiers, but publications of a more ambitious or secular standard were very few. Now and then some adventurous firm in Richmond or Charleston or New Orleans would issue a badly printed edition of a new novel, reproduced from a copy smuggled in "through the lines" or brought by the blockade runners from Nassau. Still, even "John Halifax, Gentleman," and "Les Miserables," which first appeared in the south in this way and this dress, lost much of their attractiveness in their Confederate garb of inferior ink, bad type and worse paper.—A. C. Gordon in The Century.

Fishing for Husbands.

Recently there was a gathering of young married couples in Louisville, and the conversation turned on the manner in which the wives had secured their husbands. One had paved the way to the altar by making a face at the fated one because she thought he had stared at her impudently. He admired her mettle, and sought an introduction. Another made the acquaintance of the man who is now her husband by accidentally sousing him with a pan of dishwater, which she tossed out of the kitchen window into an alley just in time to catch him as he was passing. The one that was, however, voted to be the most novel was the experience of a young man connected with the municipal government. The latter was in the habit of passing, on his way home, the residence of the young lady who is now his better half, and one evening, out of a spirit of mischief, she "accidentally on purpose" turned the hose on him. He faced about, blushed violently, and stammered a "thank you" in response to her roguish smile, and from that moment he knew he was fated.—Chicago Herald.

A Sister's Right.

She—George, dear, I don't quite like the way you go on with Ethel White. And she is as familiar as a sister would be.

He—Yes, darling, that relationship was established last June at Saratoga.—New York Sun.

Horses of the World.

Considering the very important roles which cavalry and artillery play in the art of modern warfare it is an interesting fact to know the total number of animals which the leading countries of the world can throw into the field of battle. It is equally interesting to know that the statistician in formulating his tables places the United States in second place. The following is the list, according to the late statistics furnished the war department at Washington:

Russia, $1,570,000 horses; America, 9,500,000; the Argentine Republic, 4,000,000; Austria, 3,500,000; Germany, 3,850,000; France, 2,900,000 and 300,000 mules; England, 2,790,000; Canada, 2,024,000; Spain, 680,000 horses and 2,300,000 mules; Italy, 2,000,000; Belgium, 883,000; Denmark, 810,000; Australia, 301,000; Holland, 125,000, and Portugal, 88,000 horses and 50,000 mules.—New York Mail and Express.

MIDNIGHT.

'Tis night's midglory—Earth, so calm, so still,
On couch of space is wrapped in slumber's spell;
How soft and pure her bosom's rounded swell
'Neath fleecy robes, and placid radiance shed
From silver orb, like watcher's lamp, o'erhead!
While starry regions dimly throng and fill
Her airy chamber, whence all sound is fled
Save breath of rising prayer, or whir of wings
As angels viewless pass, or heavenward springs
The guardian who hath wrought the Father's will.
Midnight and moonlight, silence, stars and God—
Sublimest height Diurnal Time hath trod.
—Edward McCarthy in Woman.

A Funeral in British Honduras.

It was in British Honduras that I first attended a velorio, or the ceremony of watching with a corpse. The family home consisted of a single long and narrow apartment, rounded at each end, with earthen floor and roof thatched with guava leaves. From the cross poles hung a few hammocks, and in the middle of the room, upon a rude bier made of two boards upheld by casks, lay the dead woman, with a wee infant clasped in her arms. The face of the mother, who could not have been more than 14 years old, was calm and peaceful, but that of the baby was strangely distorted, as if terrified with its brief look on life. Fresh flowers were scattered upon the scarlet blanket that partially covered the still figures; lighted candles stood at the head and foot, and near by sat the sisters and parents of the dead woman, silent and sad. Inquiring why the husband and father was not among the mourners, I was carelessly informed, as though it was nothing to cause remark, that la brobracrta (the poor dear girl) had never been wedded, and as for the father—quien sabe? A great crowd occupied the house of mourning, laughing and jesting as though the occasion was one of rejoicing rather than sorrow. Many were playing cards. Outside, under a pomegranate tree, refreshments were spread, and music and uproar resounded in startling incongruity with the dread mystery of death.—Cor. Philadelphia Record.

Plant a Lombardy Poplar.

Professor Asa Gray observed that the reason which lies at the bottom of the general belief on the continent of Europe that lightning strikes the Lombardy poplar trees in preference to others is coming to light. Green herbage and green wood—sappy wood—are excellent conductors of electricity. A tree is shattered by lightning only when the discharge reaches the naked trunk or naked branches, which are poorer conductors. An old fashioned Lombardy poplar, by its height, by its complete covering of twigs and small branches, and their foliage, down almost to the ground, and by its sappy wood, makes a capital lightning rod, and a cheap one. Happily no one can patent it and bring it round in a wagon and insist upon trying it. To make it sure the tree should stand in moist ground or near water, for wet ground is a good conductor and dry soil a poor one. It is recommended to plant a Lombardy poplar near the house and another close to the barn. If the ground is dry the nearer the well the better, except for the nuisance of the roots that will get into it.—Boston Budget.

Ahead of the Ring Thieves.

"I have no doubt that the jewelers in this city lose $10,000 or $15,000 a year from ring thieves," said a John street jeweler a few days ago. "The ring thief is usually well dressed and respectable in his appearance. He calls for several trays of rings, and while he is talking to the clerk manages to steal a ring. It is impossible to refuse to place a tray of rings before a customer, so I have hit upon the following scheme: Through each row of rings I run a steel rod; these rods are attached to an iron frame, with hinges at one end and a lock at the other. When a customer wishes to look at the rings I hand out this rack. When necessary, I can take off any ring by unlocking the frame. This has proved a great saving."—New York Sun.

The First Commercial Advertisement.

An English antiquarian has been delving among old newspaper files and has discovered what he says is the first commercial advertisement ever printed in a newspaper. It appeared in The Mercurius Politicus, of London, dated Sept. 30, 1658. It runs as follows:

How the Betting Stands in Indiana.

There is a popular impression that the trend of betting on election results is a good indication of the way things are drifting. Admitting such to be the case, the Democrats have the best of it to all intents and purposes in this State. They post their money readily and are not so particular as to the amount, while the Republicans hesitate and prefer small sums. That is, they abstain from the thousands altogether and are satisfied with a few hundred. As a rule the Republicans here have nothing to stake on the general result. When they put up it goes even money to say that Harrison will carry Indiana. There is a Democratic syndicate in this city that covers, without odds, every Republican dollar to be found, whether on the State or the issue at large.—Courier-Journal.

Thurman to Colored Democrats.

Judge Thurman received on Thursday a delegation of colored Democrats, who through W. H. Furbish, of Aakansas, presented an address expressing their thankfulness for favors from the Democratic party, expressing a belief in the division of the colored vote as for their best interest and stating a firm belief in the election of Cleveland and Thurman.

Judge Thurman greeted them warmly and spoke as follows:

I know very well that I have been described, and am still described, as an enemy of the colored people. There never was anything more unjust in the world. When my family came to this State my grandfather brought with him all his property, which consisted chiefly of slaves, and he set them all free. My father never owned a slave; my mother never owned a slave; I never owned a slave, and would not if I could. Now, I might almost say I was raised among colored people.

No man can say with truth that I have denied the equality before the law of colored people. I stand and Grover Cleveland stands on the platform of the Democratic party, which pronounces for equal rights for all without regard to race or color.

New York Democratic.

THE REPUBLICAN HOPE IS TO FORCE CLEVELAND AND HILL INTO A COMBAT.

NEW YORK, September 29.—The result of Colonel Lamont's visit showed to-day in the increased feeling of confidence among all Democrats as to the success of both national and State tickets. Both Cleveland and Hill are stronger than the usual Democratic vote, but in different ways, and the only hope the Republicans have is to drive from Cleveland the regular Democrats who belong to what was formerly the Hill element in the party and to keep the Cleveland Democrats from Hill. The regular Democratic vote by itself is enough to carry the State, but the floating vote, if it goes all one way, can turn the State and election. This year two-thirds of the Independent voters, as a moderate estimate, are for Cleveland, and the German Republican voters are for Hill. Unless alienations can be made to offset those gains, the State will go Democratic. So to stir up dissension between the Cleveland and the Hill Democrats is what the Republicans are seeking.

Colonel Lamont's visit was to prevent their success. He came as a friend of the President and assured the Hill managers that the President earnestly desired the victory of the State ticket and was pained that anyone could suppose or charge that his Democracy is not thorough and sterling. In 1885 the President sent a check to the State committee to help elect Hill and with the check was a personal letter containing the warmest good wishes. The stories of differences between the President and the Governor are a Republican invention. Governor Hill in his speeches and the President, through Colonel Lamont, have given proof sufficient for every Democrat that they are in hearty accord. Aside from their personal wishes for each other's success, any other course than mutual help would be political foolishness.

It is not likely that the State will go for Cleveland and Miller or Harrison and Hill, and in seeking to stir up strife among Democrats who are not high enough up in the party councils to know personally of the relations between the Governor and the President, the Republicans are simply doing some campaign maneuvring.

Council Proceedings.

Oct. 1st, 1888.

Pursuant to adjournment council met at eight o'clock P. M.

Bids having been handed in for the construction of sewer, they were opened and read.

Messrs. Ringler and Wells offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that the secretary be directed to prepare such resolution as may be required to authorize and make a loan of six thousand dollars at 5 per cent. interest to be reported to the council at the next regular meeting to be held on the 4th day of Oct. inst at seven o'clock P. M. The money to be applied to the construction of the public sewer in the western district of the town of Bloomsburg.

Carried.

Mr. Sterling, chairman of the committee, reported that they had seen the hose of the Rescue H & L. Co., and found it good except for a few needed repairs and also that the bounds of the hose carriage had been replaced and that the carriage needs paint. On motion it was ordered that the hose be repaired and hose carriage painted. On motion council adjourned.

Schools.

Our country schools will soon be opened, and it should be the aim of each director, and of all the inhabitants to secure better results than in seasons past. No teacher should be engaged who does not intend to make teaching a life work. No teacher should be selected who is not permeated with the grandness of the work, and who is not willing to devote all her time to the wants of her pupils. No person should be allowed to teach until some special preparation had been made for this good work.

Again, no community should be so unjust as to ask a qualified teacher to superintend a school where the wages are such that necessities compel the teacher to resort to manual labor to defray board bill and clothing expenses. Not that a teacher is a person that labor will injure, but that the teacher should be employed in this one occupation, and it alone.

To the parents, I would say when you get a good teacher keep her in your school. Do not allow a few dollars to cause you to part with her, and thereby incur the responsibility of not getting one to fill the vacant place. Help the teacher and she will reward you well. When you have any thing good to say about a teacher, say it if it suits your fancy. But if you know that which is not complimentary, do not under any consideration, tell it to your children. They will become rebellious, and learn to dislike the teacher. Thus her efforts may become counterbalanced by some trivial of fence. See that your children go to school regularly. If they are complaining from a headache and ask to remain at home, investigate the matter before your consent is given, the child may have been required to do some special work. Visit the school often. Invite the teacher to your homes, and show a genial social disposition. Inquire of the children each day to know how much they have learned.

And to the directors. It is your duty to see that the schools are kept in good order. The house must be properly ventilated; the floor well cleaned, the necessary supply of fuel provided, the wall decorated with maps, charts, engravings, and other materials of an instructive character, and the libraries filled with proper books to meet the demand of the learners. L. JOY.

Salt Rheum

The agonies of those who suffer from severe salt rheum are indescribable. The cleansing, healing, purifying influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla are unequalled by any other medicine.

"I take pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla, for it has done wonders for me. I had salt rheum very severely, affecting me over nearly my entire body. Only those who have suffered from this disease in its worst form can imagine the extent of my affliction. I tried many medicines, but failed to receive benefit until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. Then the disease began to subside, the disappeared, and now I am entirely free from the disease. My blood seems to be thoroughly purified, and my general health is greatly benefited." LYMAN ALLEN, Sexton N. E. Church, North Chicago, Ill.

"My son had salt rheum on his hands and the calves of his legs, so bad that they would crack open and bleed. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla and is entirely cured." J. B. STANTON, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

From 108 to 135

"I was seriously troubled with salt rheum for three years, and receiving no benefit from medical treatment I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now entirely cured of salt rheum; my weight has increased from 108 lbs. to 135." MRS. ALICE SMITH, Stamford, Conn.

Miss Sallie Hinton.

The wonderful progress of this charming young actress deserves more than a brief mention. Her theatrical talent was first manifested when quite a child, at sunday-school entertainments in Philadelphia, where her dramatic and vocal powers were remarkably displayed. Her first public dramatic triumph was made at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, in the spring of '78 as Cinderella, or the Golden Slipper, in which play she was the leading support of her lamented sister, Miss Lillie, who took the role of the Prince. Her first professional debut was in the character of Stumps in the play of "Carrots," at Wood's Museum, in 1884. Here she gave evidence of marvelous vocal and dramatic powers, and her subsequent brilliant career has fully justified her numerous friends in placing such confidence in her dramatic talent then. Graduating at the Normal School at the head of her class in June, 1885, she immediately joined the company of her sister Lillie as leading support. She performed all the leading parts until the sad death of her sister Lillie, which occured at Philadelphia last December. In the following February, becoming the legitimate successor of her dead sister, she started with a company of her own, starring in the legitimate, and the success she has achieved has been marvelous wherever she has appeared. Her career has been one perfect ovation, and this is all the more wonderful because of her tender years. Inheriting as she does a natural talent for the stage, Miss Sallie has the additional advantage of her experience with her sister, who was a popular favorite wherever she had appeared. In many respects Sallie closely resembles her sister, and especially so in her wonderfully developed power of versatility. With a rich voice of velvety sweetness, whose compass is of wide range, there is also embodied in her the grace and dignity of the true actress. She must soon become everybody's favorite.

Awful Tragedy at Danville.

A CRAZY MAN KILLS HIS WIFE AND COMMITS SUICIDE.

A terrible tragedy occurred at Danville last Saturday, Michael Whalen, a citizen of that place, killing his wife by cutting her throat, and committing suicide in the same manner. The deceased couple attended an entertainment in the Opera House the evening before and after the performance went to the home of Mr. Whalen's father, where they had left their child. The hour being late, they were easily prevailed on to remain all night in the house of the elder Whalen. Saturday morning Mrs. Whalen, the murdered woman, arose at the usual time, and taking the infant, went down stairs, leaving her husband in bed. Shortly afterward, at a call from her husband, she placed the child in the hands of another and went to his room.

Here a few minutes later a struggle was heard, but as there were no cries not much importance was attached to it. It was not until some time afterward that the room was entered and the crime discovered. Husband and wife lay lifeless upon the bed, their throats cut and a horrible pool of blood between them. Mrs. Whalen's hands were badly lacerated, showing that she had heroically resisted the assault. Whalen's head was nearly severed from his body, while in his right hand he clutched a large razor, precisely as he had drawn the blade across his throat. A large knife was also found in the bed. Whalen was undoubtedly insane when he committed the deed. He had been in poor health for a month past and lately showed evidences of insanity. He has resided in Danville since his boyhood and was well thought of.

The murdered woman is the daughter of John McDermott, a member of the Danville School Board and one of the most respected citizens. She was well-known throughout the borough. For several years, as Miss Annie L. McDermott, she held a place in the corps of borough teachers, and was a most estimable lady, loved and respected by all who knew her. Whalen and his victim were buried Sunday from St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church.

Why the Band Did Not Play.

TO THE CITIZENS OF BLOOMSBURG.

EDITORS COLUMBIAN.—As there is a general misunderstanding on the part of the citizens in regard to the Bloomsburg band not appearing in the parade on Grand Army day and as there are many stories abroad by which the band has been severely censured, please permit us through the columns of the COLUMBIAN to present to the citizens a true statement of the case, Viz: About a week or ten days previous to Grand Army Day Ent Post requested our price to furnish music for Sept. 6th to be under command of the post from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m., meeting all trains, playing for the parade in the afternoon and camp-fire in the evening For this occasion the band required extra players and we cannot hire good musicians for less than two dollars and fifty cents per day and expenses—estimating cost of expenses for extra men we fixed the price at forty dollars. This was reported to the Post and the band was informed that they could not pay this price, besides they thought that it was not really necessary to have music and would dispense with it. The band reconsidered the matter and resolved that if Ent Post, G. A. R. could not afford to pay forty dollars for music for Sept. 6th that the band would play for the post during the parade without charge but could not bind the band to the post for the day and pay the expenses of extra men without pay. In playing for parade only, we could have dispensed with extra players. This resolution was reported to commander of Ent Post on the morning of Aug. 28th with the request that if our proposition was accepted that the Post would notify the band by the following Thursday, Aug. 30, as part of the band members had other engagements in view if not wanted by the Post. We waited until Monday Sept. 3rd and not being advised concluded the Post did not need the band. On Sept. 5th the Commander notified the band that they would accept our proposition to play for the parade free of charge.

It was then too late as part of the band was engaged to other parties and the Commander was so informed. The present Bloomsburg Band was organized Sept. 27, 1871, retaining seven members of the old Bloom (war) band. During this period the citizens have paid the band for two public engagements and the band has furnished music every Decoration Day, when called upon, free of charge and have not solicited contributions of any kind since Sept. 1, 1885. The current and incidental expenses has been for the last ten years about $180 per year which has been paid by members of the band and does not include $200 paid on instruments purchased in March 1881 and $43 on uniforms purchased in Sept. 1885. We try to please all and refuse none when it is possible to serve them and the citizens of Bloomsburg should not lose sight of the fact that it requires money to conduct a band successfully as well as any other like enterprise. Thank ful for past favors remain very respectfully,
BLOOMSBURG BAND.

MR. FRANK HAYD

A Claim to Human Gratitude.

Charlotte Corday, the sad-faced, tender-hearted peasant girl of Normandy made great history by one desperate act!

Sickened by the saturnalia of the French revolution, and moved to desperation as Robespierre and Marat were leading the flower of France to the guillotine, she determined that she would put an end to Marat's bloody reign.

Marat had demanded two hundred thousand victims for the guillotine!

He proposed to kill off the enemies of the Revolution to make it perpetual!

Horrible thought!

No wonder it fired the blood of this patriotic peasant maid!

Gaining access to his closely guarded quarters by a subterfuge, she found him in his bath, even then inexorable and giving written directions for further slaughter!

He asked her the names of the inimical deputies who had taken refuge in Caen. She told him, and he wrote them down. "That is well! Before a week is over they shall all be brought to the guillotine."

At these words, Charlotte drew from her bosom the knife, and plunged it with supernatural force up to the hilt in the heart of Marat.

"Come to me, my dear friend, come to me," cried Marat, and expired under the blow!

In the Corcoran gallery at Washington is a famous painting of Charlotte, represented as behind the prison bars the day before her execution.

It is a thrilling, sad picture, full of sorrow for her suffering country, and of unconquerable hate for her country's enemies.

What a lesson in this tragic story! Two hundred, nay, five hundred thousand people would Marat have sacrificed to his unholy passion of power!

Methods are quite as murderous and inexorable as men, and they number their victims by the millions.

The page of history is full of murders by authority and by mistaken ideas! In the practice of medicine alone how many hundreds of millions have been allowed to die and as many more killed by unjustifiable bigotry and by bungling!

But the age is bettering. Men and methods are improving. A few years ago it was worth one's professional life to advise or permit the use of a proprietary medicine. To-day there are not two physicians in any town in this country who do not regularly prescribe some form of proprietary remedy!

H. H. Warner, famed all over the world as the discoverer of Warner's safe cure, began hunting up the old remedies of the Log Cabin days; after long and patient research he succeeded in securing some of the most valuable, among family records, and called them Warner's Log Cabin remedies—the simple preparations of roots, leaves, balsams and herbs which were the succesful standbys of our grandmothers. These simple, old-fashioned sarsaparilla, hops and buchu, cough and consumption and other remedies have struck a popular chord and are in extraordinary demand all over the land. They are not the untried and imaginary remedies of some dabster chemist intent on making money, but the long sought principles of the healing art which for generations kept our ancestors in perfect health, put forth for the good of humanity by one who is known all over the world as a philanthropist—a lover of his fellow man,—whose name is a guarantee of the highest standard of excellence.

The preparations are of decided and known influence over disease, and as in the hands of our grandmothers they raised up the sick, cured the lame, and bound up the wounds of death, so in their new form but olden power as Log Cabin remedies, they are sure to prove the "healing of the nations."

Corday did the world an incalculable service in ridding France of the bigoted and murderous Marat, just as this man is doing humanity a service by re-introducing to the world the simpler and better methods of our ancestors.

An editor who has grown gray in service, slowly and steadily chants the following and truthful requiem: "The man who handles the local department of a newspaper learns after experience, not to expect even briefly expressed thanks for a column of pleasant things but he knoweth as surely as cometh the winter, that a single line in which there is an unintentional mi representation, will cause some one to be heard from as on a house top. And we may add that when he has made pleasant mention 999 times of some person, thing or place, but on the thousandth time fails to do so, he must not expect to be forgiven. The omission may have been from accident, inadvertence or even an entire lack of knowledge. It matters not. The simple fact remains and he will be judged by that." —Ex.

A Reliable Port Wine.

Mr. A. Speer, of New Jersey, whose Port Grape wine has such a wide reputation, and which physicians prescribe so generally, was the first in this country to import Port Wine Grape vines from the banks of the River Loura, Portugal, where the finest old time ports were made, and to plant vineyards of them in New Jersey. His Port, Burgundy and Claret which are now the best wines to be had, have become a great favorite among the fashionable New York, Philadelphia and washington society. Druggists sell it.

"What do you think of my poem in the "Gazette' Wilkins?"

"It was a remarkable piece of work. One thing about it I thought particularly wonderful."

"What was that?"

"That the 'Gazette' ever published it."

Mr. Bucolic (of Indiana)—Sho! Mr. Bluegrass. I heerd that the folks over in your State are going to vote Republican. How's that. You're always very strong Democrats.

Mr. Bluegrass (of Kentucky)—Oh, well, you're right, but it's the prospect of free whiskey, you know.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparations of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purifying the blood, giving strength, and creating an appetite.

A despatch from Sanbury of the 26th inst, says: Conductor John Quiggle, on the Erie mail, West, this morning, had a thrilling experience with a lunatic passenger who pulled out a knife between Harrisburg and Millersburg and soon had the car to himself. He tareatened to carve everybody and made several passes at passengers. The train was stopped and delayed a half hour to secure him. He was sent back to Harrisburg Asylum.

The Bloomsburg Car Co. are now building one hundred of the Barton Stock Cars. The cars are for use on one of the Western railroads. They are much larger than the ordinary cars, and compared with other cattle cars are like a palace car. They are supplied with air brakes, have a receptacle under the car for storing hay, while inside of the car are racks for feeding, and long troughs connected by pipes for watering the stock—these troughs may all be simultaneously dumped as soon as the cattle are done drinking, and before the train starts.

Mrs. Emily A. Markle.

The writer of these lines cannot refrain from "bearing testimony" in reference to Mrs. Emily A. Markle who has suddenly been called from this earth. She died on Monday, September 17, 1888, after an illness of about three weeks. She was the daughter of the late William and Betsy Robison, and was born and reared in Bloomsburg. We were friends and companions in our childhood and youth, and of late years we had renewed the friendship of by-gone days, inasmuch as our homes had again became comparatively near, one to the other.

Doubtless there are many of her old friends who remember Emily as a strong, bright and energetic character: she developed wonderfully with years, and was a very interesting, and, in many ways, a remarkable woman. In early life she married George B. Markle and resided in Hazleton, where he amassed wealth. The foundation of which, was, no doubt, due, no less to his wife's prudent management, than to his own business capacity.

Wealth did not destroy the strong common sense with which she had been endowed, neither did it chill her loving heart; it rather developed what was in her, and proved her to be generous, sympathetic and benevolent. She was literally a woman "full of good works and alms-deeds which she did."

For many years she was an earnest member of the Presbyterian Church. She was a faithful and devoted wife to her husband who was a confirmed invalid: a most tender and loving mother to her children, and to her friends, she was ever loyal and true.

In the early summer her daughters were about starting for Oregon, to visit their brother G. B. Markle. At the suggestion of her husband, Mrs. Markle was induced to accompany them, Mr. Markle in the meantime sojourning at the home of a son in Hazleton. And now comes a sad chapter in life. Mr. Markle suddenly became seriously ill, a telegram was sent which resulted in a flying trip across the continent by the anxious wife and children, then a short re-union—when the husband and father was taken on the long journey from which there is no return. The devoted wife, overcome with grief, excitement and fatigue, after a short illness, followed her husband, and now rests beside him, worn out in the battle of life, and taken from those who fondly loved her, and long for her comforting presence. To her family, her loss is irreparable. I shall miss her sadly; our true and steadfast friendship was ever a source of pleasure, to me, and though I know that "our loss is her gain," my feelings find expression in the lamentation of David over Jonathan. "I am distressed for thee"—"very pleasant hast thou been to me."

Jefferson's Platform.

The following is the ninth of the famous sixteen principles of Jefferson:

"Economy in the public expenses that labor may be lightly burdened."

Can any one doubt that if the party of Jefferson had not come into power the application of the above principle would never have been thought of, the reduction of revenue by the removal of the tax on whisky would not now be the Republican cry, and the surplus would have been easily kept under by extravagant waste. That was largely the rule in the years of Republican administration, when there was no surplus to tempt.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

THE true American has a warm place in his heart for the old LOG CABIN. It's not "English you know," but from the Log Cabins of America have sprung men in every respect greater than any from the grand castles of Europe. Warner's Log Cabin Sarsaparilla is the best in the world.

"As you can only be a sister to me," he said, in broken tones, "will you let me kiss you good night?"

She shyly said she would.

Then he folded her in his strong arms, and gently placing her head against his manly breast, he kissed her passionately.

"Mr. Sampson," she said, softly, "this is all so new to me, so—so different from what I thought it would be, that if you will give me a little time to—to think it over I— I may—

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For "overworked," "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is entirely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning sickness, or nausea, from whatever cause arising, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use, in small doses, will prove very beneficial.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

"Favorite Prescription," when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Ex-President Arthur

Died of Bright's disease of the kidneys. So have scores of other brilliant public men. Dr. Edwards editor of the New York Medical Reporter, says that this disease is growing more common and fatal daily. People have it without knowing it, until a cure is impossible. It arises from poison in the blood. The kidneys and liver fail to act, the poison rises finally to the brain, causing convulsions and death. Its first symptoms are dullness in the head, wandering pains about the body, especially in the small of the back, loss of appetite, strength and ambition, and by dropsical swellings which show the disease to be rapidly increasing. The only cure is a medicine that will stimulate the liver, kidneys and skin to throw off the poison and then act upon the bowels to carry the foul waste matters out of the system. Bear in mind that any kidney affection, neglected, soon runs into Bright's disease. Dr. BROWN'S SARSAPARILLA cures it in a very simple and certain way. It sweeps through the corrupted circulation like a current of fresh air through a room filled with gas. It opens the natural outlets and expels the deadly element before it has time to do further mischief. One week's use of it will satisfy you of the truth of what we say.

Mr. Carleton P. Williams, of Amesbury, Mass., writes: "I had Bright's disease of the kidneys, and made up my mind to die. The best physicians had treated me, and done no real good. At this time you presented me with a bottle of BROWN'S SARSAPARILLA. I used six bottles and consider myself a well man." This splendid remedy may be a God-send to you. If you have the slightest fear of this dread disease resort at once to

Superfine Flour.

There is no article of food more generally consumed than wheat flour in its various forms of bread and pastry, but chemists by examination find that by its use, mankind loses two-thirds of the elements that go to make up bone and muscle. These vital elements are the phosphates which are absolutely necessary for the maintenance of health, and which nature has provided in the wheat grain, but man has removed from the flour in the process of bolting. It was this fact that suggested the invention by Prof. Horsford of his preparation for a baking powder (Rumford Yeast Powder) that would add these nutritious phosphates, and thereby supply the deficiency in the flour. In place of the alum, cream tartar, etc., used in common baking powders, he produced an acid phosphate, and thus makes a baking powder, which not only raises the dough, but leaves in the bread the vital phosphates of which the flour has been deprived.

The Wage Question.

The sole basis of the Republican claim that high tariffs make high wages is the fact that wages are higher in this country than in England.

Against the absurd deduction from this fact let intelligent workingmen weigh these other incontestable facts:

1. Wages have always been higher in this broad and free new country than in the old, oppressed and overcrowded countries of Europe. They were twice as high here as in England before the Revolution of 1776. They have always been relatively as much higher as they are now, alike under no tariff, low tariffs and high tariffs.

2. The rate of wages in the same industries differs as much in different cities and States of the Union as it does between this country and England.

3. Mr. Blaine, when Secretary of State, certified to the fact, established by statistics, that "undoubtedly the inequalities in the wages of English and American operatives are more than equalled by the greater efficiency of the latter and their longer hours of labor."

4. The wages in Free-Trade England are as much higher than they are in any Protectionist country in Europe as wages here are higher than in England. Mr. Crawford, our correspondent lately in that country, says that "the dregs of the labor markets of Europe find their way to England.' They go because wages are higher there. From protected Germany and Russia the underpaid artisans flock to England as Englishmen come here.

5. Wherever labor organizations prevail here or labor is scarce wages are high. Wherever labor is unorganized or labor is plentiful wages are low. The tariff is powerless to prevent these inequalities, nor do the low wages in one place pull down the high wages in another.

6. The real competition with American wage-workers comes from immigration. Labor is on the free list.—N. Y. World.

Flattery is the worst of insults; but here are mighty few people in this world who are keen enough to know when anybody is insulting them.

The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—Five years ago I was so unfortunate as to contract an extremely bad case of blood poison. My bones ached and my muscles began to swell and contract. I was under treatment of the physician from the inception of the disease until I found that he could do me no good. Then, through the advice of a friend I began taking S. S. S. Your medicine seemed to have an immediate effect. I took six bottles, and to-day am sound and well. That was two or three years ago, but I have seen no evidence of the return of the disease, and I take this opportunity to thank you for what it has done for me. It saved my life. You can refer any one to me. R. M. WALL.
